Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, delivered one of his calm, conservative and convincing speeches this week, on the report of the committee which has been engaged in investigating the effect of the tariff on the cost of living and wages in this country and Great Britain. He began by stating that the lines were more sharply drawn in the present campaign than ever before, the Republicans favoring a continuance of the 1:25 p. m. 12:20 a n. protective tariff, and the Democrats denouncing protection as a fraud and as being unconstitutional. He gave notice that the friends of protection proposed waging an aggressive warfare upon the revolutionary doctrines, which, although long secretly cherished by Democratic leaders, are now for the first time openly avowed. He then recited the Democratic statements--misstatements would have better expressed the idea-made dur- creek, ing the last Congressional campaign, charging that the McKinley tariff law would result in greatly increasing the

Senator Vest made a weak attempt to reply, using the Homestead labor troubles as an argument against protection, and asserting that the value of farming lands has deteriated under protection, which assertion brought instant denials, as to their own States, from a number of Republican Senators, including Paddock, of Nebraska; Davis, of Minnessota, and Pettigrew, of North Dakota.

SHE IS HER HUSBAND'S COMPANION. I know nothing about an ideal woau-never saw one, nor an ideal man either. And if I did know one, she would be the last woman in the world I would tie to. The contrast would be too great.

An ideal wife is the ideal woman fully developed. She always "sticks up" for her husband-at home as well as abroad. His shortcomings are covered up, even from himself, and committee composed of the following she comes to believe he is just what she wants him to be,

She always has a hearty "I told gressional Campaign: Caldwell, of you so" when he wins success-never

Every man has his limitations; sooner or later he learns this. When financial losses, misfortune and humiliation come, and he feels crushed by the force of circumstances, she always takes his part. God bless her! And he is inclined to throw the blame on anyone or anything, she goes him one better and lays it on thicker. What a comforter she is!

Her ingenuity is taked to prove him right under all circumstances, and so artless is her reasoning that she deceives herself.

Does this swell us up? Why, o course it does; but it also puts a heart in a man and gives him a backbone to stand the next struggle.

Prospects gone, the future mortgages, hopes dashed, the sky overcast with clouds, a man would sink never to rally were it not for the loving hand to part the clouds and let the sunshine stream through. He finds there is one heart which gladly gives him the place of honor, one fireside where he is still a hero, one home with an ideal welcome; and the lamb becomes a lion. A man would die for such a wife!

She is her husband's companion. If he loves books she will cultivate that love in herself. This may take time and effort, but rich is the reward. I know a husband who is intellectually starving because his wife is not with him in his thirst after knowledge. He must trod alone where her presencse would turn every-day prose into Sabbathsday poetry.

Such a wife may not be an ideal. but her presence goes a long way toward making an ideal husband.

An ideal woman has all the bes traits of wife and mother.

NOT PERFECT, BUT SPIRITUAL. She is of earth, earthly, though fit for heaven. She is not an impossible creature nor yet a composite one, and she is not perfect. First of all, good attributes, she has in her heart the spirit of altruism, which Christ taught and applied. She is practical, though not without a strong vein of sentiment, She has a wealth of sympathy, which meets every demand, and pity for the poor and distressed which prompts to practical aid. Everybody respets her, and no man walks in her presence without feeling the strength and nobility of her womanliness, without his spiritual nature receives a baptısm.

She is frank, impulsive, warm hearted and generous, and attracts many friends. Withal she is modest and refined, bright and well educated. She appreciates art, delights in music, and loves literature. She is interested in current events, and enjoys talking about them. She has rather advanced ideas on "woman not be without it. In answer to your question I beg to say that the ideal woman should be: In brain, large; in learning, broad; in scholarship, exact; in power of thinking, clear and deep; in heart, pure; in love, warm; in every quality as near like her Creator as human can approach the divine.

The other ancestor seeing that the troops were without a commander, rushed from out the ranks and shouting: "For God's sake fire!" made himself the leader the men needed.

From the time this woman was a little girl in stort dresses she had repeatedly heard this story, and had been proud of the brave man and oh! so ashamed of the coward. As she grew into womanhood she found in her nature parts of both ancestors.

While resting my bones in the Michigan grass last summer, I had a sacrifice, in sharing the lot of the man and verifying, the talk of a well informed, practical, and consequently well-to-do farmer. I noticed that the Look at her -she may not be beau- wheels of his wagon had very broad tiful, as the world counts beauty, but tires (and by the way, I couldn't the bloom of health is upon her heart, help noticing how well wood seems to answer for the wheels of tarm wagons.) I asked a great many questions about the broad tires, and this is what I found out:

It seems that the Michigan law Pen lendis comes near my ideality of makers have had their windows open who will use on his wagon tires of a certain width shall have a rebate in his road tax of one-half. And this is how it works. In buying a new wagon the difference in cost is slight, as the wider tires may be much thinner, and the added strength in the wooden rim makes a stronger wheel. To take from a wagon already in place them with wider ones, cost between $12 and $20, and in the case of the farmer to whom I refer, the direct saving in road tax at once was better than twenty-five per cent. on the cost of making the alteration. To a man who was loaning his surplus money at six or seven per cent., the broad tires looked like a good investment, even if there was no other advantage. But the other advantages narrow tires, and he could now haul fifty bushels with great ease. When it came to hauling stuff to market the load could, with wide tires, be increased from twenty-five to fifty per cent. This much from the farmer's standwealth? It has been discovered that, in localities where a considerable portion of the inhabitants use the broad tires, the decreased tax keeps the road in better condition than the whole tax did when the narrow tires prevailed, and it is believed by men who are in a position to know that when broad tires are universally used, the highways (all kinds, from the city pavement to the poorest dirt road,) may be kept in better condition than will feel sad at the news of her death. at present, with one-fourth the present cost.

The greatest improvement for the least outlay is what the present generation is most likely to realize on, and while I thoroughly believe in all the good work now being done to the roads, I believe that no road will ever be built that can stand narrow tires under heavy loads, and to improve the first is beginning at the wrong end of it. Legislation looking toward the forced general adoption When the cry of battle sounded of wheel treads proportion to the maximum load to be carried is the thing universal would greatly improve present roads, and as fast as roads were made better, would tend to keep them so. If you were putting down a new parlor carpet you wouldn't let the boys continue to walk on it with hob-nailed shoes, would you? If you did, the carpet appropriations would begin to run short and you would have to appeal to the Legislature for

There is just one valid objection to wide tires, and that is, that such a wagon rups hard over a road which is mostly used by the old kind of tires, but when all wheels are what they should be, there will be no ruts (at least not in the road,) and the face of the farmer may yet be shortened so that he can get shaved at the regular price. I have often heard teamsters say they would be glad to use broad tires if every one else was compelled This is the key to the situation. Make wrong-doing in this direction illegal, at the same time show to the wagon owner why it is directly profitable to him to comply with the law. Did you ever notice how willingly a man become a law-abiding citizen when he can make money by it? The money now expended for roads would come very near making them good Mr. Jesse Dunn writes as follows: roads if it were not for the constant abuse inflicted by narrow tires. But I do not believe it possible to ever raise money enough to keep the roads where they should be until the tire question is settled by law, and any such law which would take effect two (or even one) years after its passage could not be a hardship to any-

FOR PRESIDENT, BENJAMIN HARRISON, Of Indiana. FOR VICE PRESIDENT, WHITELAW REID, Of New York.

FOR SHERIFF, CLAYTON L. WOODWARD. FOR CIRCUIT COURT CLERK, SEPTIMUS T. STEVENS

To-morrow is the Convention.

This is the year of Republican suc cess in the Fourth Congressional District. So let every Republican in the county turn out to-morrow and assist in choosing a candidate.

THE Democratic party is afraid of its Free Trade position and 1s attempting to dodge the issue in the campaign and take up the Force Bill, but the people are acquainted with Democratic subterfuges. HUDSON THATCHER is the Republis can candidate for Circuit Clerk of Butler county, and of course that means he will be elected. He is an energetic and popular young man, who will make an excellent Clerk. THE Democrats in Congress are heaping shame upon their own heads and placing the country in an unenviable position by opposing the appropriation for the World's Fair. Away

JAKERowe's absurd reference to the Homestead affair in his speech at the Court House Tuesday night fell as flat as Cleveland's like reference at the recent notification meeting. The people cannot fail to look with suspicion upon a party, or its mouthpieces, whose cause is so weak that it must be bolstered up by such unwarranted statements. Down with such rot.

OUR slow-going neighbor, the Herald, announced Wednesday with great gusto, its little snake story, when the truth is, rattler was dead as a hammer several hours before the sheet went to press. It is supposed to have died from the effect of the bite from the victous fangs of his ratship. The question now agitating the minds of the people is which is the worst a snake bite or a rat bite?

When the Herald is growing so el oquent in its denunciation of Repubheans in their efforts to subserve the best interest of the people of the county, one's mind naturally turns to the sickening job that sheet and the Democratic politicians of Ohio county attempted to perpetrate upon our people in the Little Bend affair. The Herald is ever ready to impugn the motives of others and to forget its own sin and the sins of its party, sealing its ears alike to the voice of truth and consistency.

WE fail to see any special ability in Mr. Crowe as a Representative and we also fail to see wherein he has made for himself, his party or his county any brilliant record in the Legislature, but while this is true we also fail to see in what respect the average Democratic Representative from Ohio county for the last twenty years excels Mr. Crowe, either in native ability or in the brilliancy of his record. It seems to us it is the old game of the kettle calling the pot black, and the Herald's criticism of Mr. Crowe falls with equal force upon his Democratic predecessors. So far as their ability and the good they have done their constituents is concerned they are all of a whatness.

Tue Herald, true to its record of falsitying and misrepresentation, comes out this week in a windy editorial condemning the action of the commissioners in their division of the county into Magisterial Districts, and attempts to bring them and their work into disrepute. As is usual, the facts do not sustain the position of this pettish little neighbor. According to the vote at the August election of 1891 the Magisterial Districts will have the following population: Buford, 504; Fordsville, 676; Cromwell, 968; Hartford, 1,148, and Rosine, 1,274. In the case of Rosine precinct the vote of 1890 is taken as the vote for that one precinct, for the year of 1891 could not be found, and the vote for the whole Magisterial District is thus larger perhaps by 25 than with the vote of 1891. Now, it is charged that the people will be deprived of the use of the courts in such a district as Rosine, but the reader will notice that in that district there are five incorporated towns and five police courts, that in Cromwell District there are two incorporated towns and two police courts, that in Fordsville District there are two incorporated towns and two police courts, and in Hartford District there is one incorporated town and one police court, one county court, one quarterly court and a circuit court, so that if courts are what the people of the county need, they are abundantly supplied. Again, it charged that the only object in the division was to make Republican Districts. Now, this bears a falsehood on its very face, for if the commis sioners had been actuated by such motives it would have been very easy for them to have made only one Democratic District in the county and the with the economy that costs our coun- rest all Republican. A Trade That Pleases. Were we to begin life again barbering should be our trade. It must be one of the most delightful. With a nice shop in a city, tastefully decorated and furnished, hot and cold water near each chair, and a good run of custom, it is the prettiest trade we know: a regenerating trade, too: a beautifier; the barber feels, and actually sees, that he is improving customers' looks, and that is encouraging. A man who sells adulterated goods, pernicious literature, sham articles, humbug nostrums, etc., knows he is doing evil. A man who sells corsets knows he is selling an engine that injures women.

But here comes a fellow into a bar ber shop with a head of hair that looks as if mice had nested in it: a few snips of the shears, a shampoo, a little oil, and lo! a transformation The barber feels that he has catered to beauty. He has made a new creature of that fellow, put off his old Adam and put on a new. The effect of that sort of thing daily must tell on a man. Or with a razor singing gives it that clean, pure look that only a shave can give it, and the effect of it is good too. - National Bar-

They Noticed the Hat.

A great Englishman was a prodigy at the university. Whatever could be learned he learned. But he had no sense of humor. He thought that men's eyes suffered through not wearing hats with brims of sufficient breadth, so he wore a hat with an immense brim. One day after visiting a great city he said to a friend: I have had convincing proof of the English people's readiness to accept improvement when placed in their view. I had not been out of the railway station five minutes when I was surrounded by a crowd of people all exclaiming, 'Who's your hatter?' You see they discerned the advantage of this valuable hat, and wanted to know where they could get hats like it. But most unfortu-

Beaver Dam Roller Mills.

The attention of the public is specially called to the fact that this Mill has just been completed upon the most modern plan, with all the improved appliances for the manufacture of the FINEST FLOUR and other Mill Products. Positively no money has been spared to make it turn out as fine product as any Mill in the STATE.

It has been thoroughly tested, having been run almost every day since its completion and a portion of the time at night to keep up with its orders. Its product has been sold to the best, most scrutinizing and particular trade of the country, and it is with pride that it can point to testimonials from the best bakers and many of the very best cooks of the county that it makes the best flour they ever used. For the benefit, convenience and protection of the farmer has this Mill been built, and to him will it look for its support.

With proper care Ohio County can produce as good wheat as any, and this Mill intends to see that her farmers get the benefit of any efforts they put forth in this direction. The best products of this Mill shall go upon the farmers table, and if he will favor it with his patronage and his influence satisfaction will be guaranteed to him. We have now one of the very best and most experienced millers in the Green River Country, but that no pains may be spared to give the farmer the full benefit of his good wheat crop, we have ordered and are expecting every day an expert miller sent by the builders of our Mill to stay with us during the season. We shall ceriainly consider it a great favor if every farmer in the County will call on us within the next 60 days and get a sample of our product and our treatment. We want all the FIRST-CLASS wheat that is for sale in the County and if you have it to spare, load it up, and we will pay the highest market price for it. Mill open every day except Sunday.

Retaliation Against Canada.

The passage by both houses of Congress of a bill authorizing the President to retalliate on Canada for her violations of the treaty with us in regard to the Welland canal is a step in the right direction. Some of the Canadian papers speak of it as a piece of campaign bluster, which shows | perience goes for naught. both ignorance and assurance on their part. Ignorance, because they do not know that our Senate and House are they do not dy for you. For saie by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro controlled by different parties, and assurance, because the sham negotiations about reciprocity, which the Canadian Tory Government pressed last winter, were surely one of its tricks to gull Canadian voters. During those negotiations the Canadian commissioners agreed that the discriminations against our vessels passing the Welland canal should be abragated, but no sooner had the by elections in Canada been carried than these discriminations were formally renewed without any explanation for another year. Under such circumstances it is the height of assurance in Canadian papers to talk about the action of onr Government in this matter as a campaign expedient.

If the warning given Canada by this act is not heeded Congress should go farther, and take the steps suggested by Gen. J. H. Wilson 12 an article in the International Review some years ago. The subsidized railway of Canada are now allowed to subject some of the railways of the United States to an almost ruinous competion. We have allowed them the same privileges as our railways, while they are free from the restrictions of our interstate commerse act. The thoroughly adequate mode of retaliation and retribution would be to withdraw from those railroads the special privileges they now enjoy. Such a course would wake the Canada public to a realization of what their Tory party is costing them. The Canadian Tories are afflicted with a rapid antipathy to the country. As the New York Sun well says, they are lackeys in the grain, and would rather lick the boots of an Englishman than shake hands with an American. They detest our institutions, because under them there is no room for the titles and decorations which are dangling before the eyes of the Queen's loyal subjects in Canada. They are jealous of our national prosperity, and disgusted with the way in which it draws away their population. The Caradian Liberal party has always shown a friendly disposition toward this county, and one good effect of a sharp retaliatory policy is apt to be the overthrow of the foreign regime and the accession of a party which will infuse a spirit of fair play into Canadian dealings with us.

A Wild Ride That Terrified a Trainload of Western Passengers.

Probably one of the most exciting incidents ever known in railroading was told a reporter by Mr. Julius Smith, who has returned from a trip to the northwest. He was in Tacoma, Wash., for some time on a visit, and on his return started back on the Oregon Short line. The road leads along the base of the mountains, and the passengers were enjoying a fine view for some distance, and everything appeared to be going on nicely until suddenly it was noticed that the train was gradually increasing in speed until it fairly flew along the rails. The passengers began to get uneasy, but when they saw the conductor and brakeman rush frantically toward the front of the train they then knew that something serious was the matter.

Faster and faster flew the train until it bounded from side to side at a fearful rate and the frightened passengers were thrown about the cars like so many puppets. Trees and poles flashed and the train was S. C. TAYLOR, S. O. C going at a clip equal to 100 miles an hour, while it seemed only a miracle which kept it on the track. Around curves it would spin, almost standing the poor victims on their heads, while they were every minute expecting to be dashed to pieces. The conductor soon discovered that the engineer had gone mad. He stopped for nothing, but flashed past the stations at lightning speed, and for a stretch of forty-five miles the train went so fast that it was impossible for the passengers to hold their seats. The fireman could not be seen in the cab and it was determined to make an effort to get to the madman before he sent the whole trainload of people to eternity. The conductor and brakeman crawled carefully along the tender and worked their way into the engine behind the engineer, who stood with his head bare and his long hair floating back as he gazed ahead, muttering to

With a blow the madman was laid on the floor and the conductor shut off steam and gradually brought the train to a standstill. The madman was secured and a dispatch sent back over the road asking for information regarding the fireman. It was discovered that at the last put on full steam. The engineer was Expenses Paid..... always sober and had never shown Cash on Hand and in other any signs of insanity before.—Kansas City Journal.

A Word Against Extremes. A great many people are fond of overdoing things. They carry practices and ideas to extremes and indulge in the use of superlatives. Unqualified praise is seldom called for, desirable, for the great poet found there was "good in everything." The general use of extremes is apt to arouse suspicion as to sincerity, and people adopt a paper bordered by a by the most careful, watchfulness and black band fully half an inch in a strict observance of the principles of width. not necessary to proclaim it to the In the wearing of rings and jewelry a lavishness of display is often noticeable. This also is bad form, being a parade of mere personal wealth. Rings and jewels are all right if worn in moderation, but true refinement never indulges in excesses of dress or ornamentation. It is this overdoing of things that leads to difficulties, even as too much study may weaken your eyes or destroy your health, thus preventing for a time at least further acquirement of knowledge. In speech also superlatives are too often used, and they serve to awaken distrust .- Har-

The Farmer and the Lawyer. This story is told of Charles Dickens and Mr. Frederick Ouvry, the well known solicitor. On one occasion, Dickens was in treaty for a piece of land at the back of Gad's Hill, the proposed vendor being an old farmer, a keen old man of business and a hard nut to crack. An interview was arranged with him at Gad's Hill for a certain evening, and Mr. Ouvry came down for the purpose of being present when the bargain was struck. Dickens and Ouvry were sitting over their wine when the old man was announced. "We had better go in," said Dickens. "No, no," said the astute lawyer-"John" (to the butler), "show him into the study and take him a bottle of old port wine."

Then, turning to Dickens, "A glass of port will do him no harm; it will soften him" After waiting about twenty minutes they went into the study. The farmer was sitting bolt upright in an armchair, stern and uncompromising; the bottle of port had not been touched. The negotiations then proceeded very much in favor of the farmer and the bargain was struck. With a chuckle the old man then turned his attention to the port and finished the bottle .-

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:
Dear Sirs—I must say that I once tried a bottle of your Kendall's Spavin Cure on a three-year old colt, and it entirely removed a bone spavin and I did not use all the bottle in removing it. The horse is six or seven years old, very sound, and has done hard work all of the time.

Respectfully yours, E. KINGSTON SALISBURY.
